DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is a two story two part stone and log structure with each section having two bays. The log part is completely sheathed with asbestos siding. The stone section is constructed of coursed native limestone with some courses following a Flemish bond pattern. Above the windows are broad stone lintels incised with radiating lines to suggest a series of cut blocks. Window and door frames are moderately wide with corner joints secured with wooden pegs. Two over two pane replacement sashes are not present. In the log section window frames are wide and massive and also have two over two pane sashes. The interior of the stone section has a stair and entrance hall and had two rooms adjacent to it. Its woodwork dates from the first quarter of the 19th century. The interior of the log section has woodwork from the late 19th century which could indicate that it was either built or renovated during that period.

Also present is a frame bank barn, a brick smoke house and frame outbuildings.
